Landfill problems piling up

By Alex Coop

Minden Hills was slapped with a Provincial Officer's Order June 19 due to growing leachate concerns at the Scotch Line landfill, but it's not the only waste disposal site in the county facing challenges.

The Ministry of Environment and Climate Change's (MOECC) Peterborough district office monitors 30 sites. Seven sites have known leachate impact to off-site groundwater. Three are in Haliburton County.

The MOECC says leachate from the Hawk Lake, Kennisis Lake and Haliburton landfills are impacting off-site groundwater. Leachate is the decomposition of waste material mixing with rainwater.

"We take these issues seriously and continue to inspect and assess these sites to ensure appropriate actions are being taken to protect human health and the natural environment," David Bradley, district manager of the Peterborough district, recently told The Highlander. "When seepage occurs, we expect the owner to address the underlying cause as soon as possible."

In Haliburton, "Not drinking water" signs can be found next to taps at five businesses on Industrial Park Road. Anyone standing next to the running water will quickly catch a whiff of metal.

In a small area of land outside of the site, the metal content in the groundwater is higher than ministry standards, says

Store owner placed in chokehold

By Alex Coop

A day before his 36th birthday on July 11, Stanley Cheong, owner of the Lucky Dollar Food Store in Gooderham, was putting in an order for grocery items, when two men entered his store and tried to rob him.

"I didn't think anything of it when they walked in," Cheong told The Highlander shortly after the attempted robbery Tuesday morning. "We get customers all the time."

The situation, however, escalated quickly, he says, as the two men surrounded Cheong, put him in a chokehold, and demanded access to the store's office.

"They were directing me around the store, trying to get into the office and get money," he said.

The two suspects fled the store shortly after. A press release issued July 12 said the men fled the scene in a 1984 black Buick Grand National. They were last seen driving westbound on County Road 503.

As of press time, their whereabouts was unknown. Cheong was unable to provide additional details, but confirmed that no one was hurt.

Haliburton Highlands OPP were called to the scene shortly before 10 a.m., but were unable to provide any details about the attempted robbery or the suspects at that time.

Officers, along with the OPP Central Region Crime Unit, are conducting an investigation.

Cheong, who lives in Gooderham, took over ownership of the store four years ago after his parents ran it for 35 years.

He says an attempted robbery has never happened before.

Residents driving by the scene of the crime were shocked by the news.

"Things like this don't happen around here," one man said.

Police ask anyone with information to call the local detachment at 705-286-1431 or Crimestoppers at 1-800-222-TIPS (8477).

Man facing drug impairment and possession charges

Police have laid two charges against a Haliburton man who lost control of a pickup truck on July 7. Shortly after 7 p.m., Haliburton Highlands OPP responded to a complaint of a truck going into the ditch on County Road 21 in Haliburton, according to OPP Const. Dianna Dauphinee. They discovered the driver, Chase Thurston, 26, in the truck in the westbound ditch. Thurston was taken to hospital as a precaution. "[The] investigation revealed the driver to be under the influence of a drug that impaired his ability to drive safely," said Dauphinee in a report. He was charged with care and control of a vehicle while impaired by a drug and possession of a Schedule 1 substance. His first court appearance is Sept. 6 at the Minden courthouse. (Mark Arike).

Senior injured in car crash

A 75-year-old woman suffered minor injuries following a single-vehicle accident on Wednesday morning.

The crash occurred on Highway 118 by Loon Lake. Police, paramedics and Dysart firefighters responded.

No charges were laid, said OPP Const. Dianna Dauphinee. (Mark Arike).

Minden man charged with impaired driving

A 23-year-old Minden Hills man was charged with impaired driving July 8 after his truck struck a steel lamp post on Highway 35 near the intersection of County Road 21.

Haliburton Highlands OPP say Zachary Harrison, 23, was driving southbound on Highway 35 in a silver Dodge Ram pickup when the vehicle left the road and struck the lamp post.

OPP responded to the accident at approximately 6:15 a.m.

Harrison will appear in the Ontario Court of Justice in Minden Sept. 6. He also received an automatic 90-day driver's licence suspension and his vehicle has been impounded for seven days. (Alex Coop).

Landfill capacity dwindling

Mallory Bishop, Dysart's environmental coordinator. The landfill has only five years of capacity left, but Dysart is working to ensure it gets environmental compliance approvals to allow it to become a transfer station.

These stations are often created when a landfill reaches the end of its life. That waste is then trucked out of the county. Most transfer stations in the county send their waste to Progressive Waste Solutions' Bracebridge site.

The MOECC told Dysart to supply the Industrial Road businesses with bottled water, and warning signs, beginning in March 2012. Five years later, little has been done to mitigate the problem.

A bedrock background monitoring well northwest of the landfill was installed as an additional monitoring site, but beyond that, there's been no direction from the ministry, says Bishop.

"This is a huge problem that is not going away. Our landfill capacity is dwindling," said Bishop.

Because of the potential for adverse impact to groundwater near the landfill, the municipality has, for decades, ensured that no residential development occur near the site, says Reeve Murray Fearrey.

"From first-hand knowledge, those five sites have had a lot of industrial uses ... they never intended to drink the water," Fearrey said, adding steps to mitigate the issues at Kennisis are also underway.

"We've changed the drainage pattern and are talking with the adjoining owner to create an attenuation zone."

Leachate attenuation zones are natural buffers around a landfill that protect against contamination of groundwater.

Mike Thomas, public works director for Algonquin Highlands, says the township is unaware of any off-site groundwater issues due to leachate from the Hawk Lake landfill.

The township's recent annual monitoring report for 2016, submitted by Cambium Inc., which consults to the township, says the groundwater at the site is not "interpreted to indicate significant adverse effects due to landfilling operations."

The report, however, does refer to groundwater quality data that shows aluminum levels regularly exceeding the MOECC guidelines at one of its monitoring wells. But according to Cambium, it's been determined that the well is not impacted by the landfill.

Finding a solution

Forty-four per cent of active landfills in Ontario are municipally-owned, the Ontario Waste Management Association's (OWMA) 2016 annual report states. Many, like ours, don't have curbside pickup.

Therefore, efforts to raise awareness about hazardous waste days and recycling have been a focus of environmental departments nationwide.

In some instances, it's paid off.

"Residents are very receptive to the recycling program in Algonquin Highlands," Thomas said, citing a diversion rate of 34.4 per cent, compared to a provincial average of 30.6 per cent.

But in the summer, when the county's population triples and traffic at the Haliburton landfill doubles, recycling takes a small hit.

"It's the occasional weekend cottage renter that basically throws everything into one or two bags and just expects to throw it over the bank at a landfill," said Rob Camelon, Dysart's interim public works director.

In addition, landfill exit strategies or expansion options are difficult to achieve due to location and a lack of appropriate space, says Peter Hargreave, OWMA's former director of policy. But it's going to take more than successful landfill exit strategies to curb poor diversion rates, he adds. Encouraging businesses and the general public to practice sustainable consumption will be crucial.

"Let's draw more resources out of that waste material and divert more into resource markets," Hargreave said.

Statistics Canada says local government spending on waste management in Canada increased from $1.8 billion in 2004 to $3.2 billion in 2012, reflecting the disturbing fact that Canadians produce more garbage per capita than any other country on earth.

The MOECC predicts that by 2050, 40 per cent more waste will be generated than in 2016. A new piece of legislation aims to tackle the problem by asking producers in Ontario to take responsibility for the end-of-life management of their products and packaging, ultimately creating a "circular economy."

"The government's new legislation is pushing in the right direction. But there is concern in the interim as to what to do with the waste we have right now," Hargreave said.

Landfill company says it reported concerns to town

By Lisa Gervais

Highlands Environmental – Minden Hills’ contractor for landfill attendants at Scotch Line – has spoken out after the Ministry of Environment and Climate Change (MOECC) issued the township with a Provincial Officer’s Order June 19 over the state of the waste disposal site.

For me to comment before I see Cambium Inc.’s report is prejudicial... it wouldn’t be fair.

Brent Devolin
reeve, Minden Hills

A consultant to Highlands Environmental (HE), Brigitte Gall, said HE is an independent contractor to Scotch Line and other municipal landfills and transfer stations and “is not responsible for the decisions, actions or inactions that may have led to the current situation at the Scotch Line landfill.”

She told The Highlander July 11 that the company felt it had no option but to come forward after a number of residents came to Scotch Line to challenge the attendants and ask them “how or why they let this happen.”

But Gall said in an email, “We have no role or authority with regards to site management or operations. As stated in the MOECC report, it is the municipality which is the owner/operator of the site.”

“HE is mentioned only once in the report, and only in reference to its provision of staff. Attendants are there to assist the public and enforce the landfill rules as directed by the municipality.”

She added that as the frontline workers at Scotch Line, they have noted similar concerns to those stated in the provincial officer’s report, and have brought these concerns to the attention of municipal staff.

Some of the concerns include: leachate, both in and outside of the landfill’s current footprint; improper waste in a too steep construction and demolition pile, and litter in the woods. Leachate is water that has travelled through a solid and leached out some of its contaminants.

Ivan Ingram, the township’s environmental and property operations manager, declined comment.

Reeve Brent Devolin told The Highlander July 12 that “for me to comment before I see Cambium Inc.’s report is prejudicial. They are the experts in the field with the knowledge about the facility and operations. It wouldn’t be fair.”

The municipality has called a special meeting of council for July 17 at 1 p.m. in council chambers to discuss the order.

Time to ask tough questions

A municipality receiving a Provincial Officer's Order is not a common event.

But that's exactly what Minden Hills has for the Scotch Line landfill – over what Ministry of the Environment and Climate Change staff say is “indicative of poor landfill operational practices.”

The Highlander's been receiving complaints about Scotch Line for some time now, and we've been keeping an eye on things.

Since this spring in particular, we've noticed the construction and demolition waste pile grow and grow. Despite assurances it will be chipped and used as alternative daily cover, the pile remains steep.

We've noticed things such as plastics and upholstered furniture on that pile, and wondered if they should be there.

Now, we know they shouldn't.

We've also noticed the black and orange staining that is characteristic of leachate. And we've seen a fair bit of garbage in the woods along the dump road. The township says it does a good job of waste diversion – bragging about a landfill lifespan that has increased by years — but we're not convinced.

We've noticed a Highlands Environmental attendant by the big blue recycling bins, near the gate. This is good. He's been having a quick look to ensure people are putting the right stuff in the right bin. Trouble is, there should be more stuff showing up at this stage of the process. What doesn't show up is often dumped along the way.

The news isn't good at the recycling tent either. Since the volunteers were kicked out last year, it's a shambles. People drop stuff off and there's no one to sort through it. You physically cannot get to the back of the tent to see if there is something of re-use. Some items are left uncovered and spoiling in the weather.

We understand the township was worried about liability issues with volunteers working at the landfill but, really, in its current state, the seasonal tent is failing in its purpose to promote reusing discarded items.

So, who's to blame for this mess?

The township contracts Highlands Environmental to provide attendants at the Scotch Line and other landfill and transfer stations. It also contracts Cambium Inc. to periodically inspect, report and make recommendations. Cambium pointed out some of the issues, in its annual monitoring report to council, in late April. Their 25-year plan for Scotch Line is now with the MOECC, awaiting approval.

As for Highlands Environmental, they say they have no role or authority with regards to site management or operation. They say they, too, have brought concerns to municipal staff.

The township has called a special meeting of council to discuss the situation, scheduled for Monday, July 17 at 1 p.m. It's time our councillors asked some tough questions of staff, Highlands Environmental and Cambium on behalf of their constituents: how did the landfill get to this state and how will it be cleaned up.

They'll also have to take a look at their own oversight role and ask themselves, honestly, if they're adequately informed and engaged to ensure the township's waste is managed safely and sustainably.

By Lisa Gervais

It's all downhill from here

One thing the Highlands is noted for is its hills. We have hills of all shapes and sizes. We have hills in a variety of colours and hills that change hues, depending on the time of the year. We have hills with names, like Vinegar and Scotch Line and hills that are so tricky, you don't even know they are there until you have passed up or down them and something in the back of your mind says, 'I think that was a hill'. (If you are having these kinds of discussions in the back of your mind, you might want to seek professional help.)

I was prompted to think about hills, (in the front of my mind), the other day when I stopped at Kawartha Dairy for one of their delicious cones. Ah, the summer would not be complete without a visit or two to the blue tent on Highway 35 and the endless list of flavours offered to tempt one's palette. (Although I did overhear a couple enumerating the flavours to their young daughters skip over Cotton Candy and some of the more egregious concoctions.)

As we enjoyed our ice cream at one of the picnic tables, I noted that the Kawartha Dairy hill still retains the magic it has always had. Without a sign or set of instructions or cautionary warnings, the gentle incline next to the dairy calls out to young children. “Roll down this hill,” it says in a mysterious telepathic way that only children can hear. “Climb here. Lie down and let gravity take you spinning and squealing to the bottom of the hill.”

As I sat there watching the children rolling down the hill, I wondered, how does that happen? What is it about that hill in particular that children find irresistible? And it is! On any fair weather day, seemingly without a prompt, the children forsake their ice cream cones, leaving parents to manage the dripping delights, and cascade down the hill. My children did 35 years ago and now my grandchildren do it. And why this hill in particular? Perhaps it is a natural extension of the sugar high provided by the ice cream cones. Perhaps it is just the right size for children of a certain age ... not too high, but challenging enough for young legs to conquer. And maybe the gravity induced twirling down the incline gives the child the thrill of being out of control but also safe at the same time. Perhaps it is like a carnival ride without the height restrictions and safety straps.

What is the attraction? The thought crossed my mind, (not a long journey, (credit to Douglas Furber and Arthur Rose), that for all the hills that wrinkle our Highlands, this has to be one of the most special. I would guess, just behind the ice cream cones served up next door by the thousands, this incline is a special part of every child's memory of growing up in the Highlands. Long may they roll.

Reader tells boaters to mind the wake

Dear editor,

Why is it that people who are smart enough to earn the money it takes to buy and upkeep $100,000 powerboats don't have the common sense and smarts to realize that their watercraft produces wakes that are both rude and dangerous? Our place is on a long and quite narrow section of the lake. Recently, a 20-foot Sterndrive Bowrider with nine or 10 people aboard slowed down to half speed when approaching (within 30 feet) a canoe with two adults and two children. Anyone who has ever spent any time in a boat should know that something weighing a ton-and-a-half creates a tidal wave. I was in a 12-foot aluminum boat and I had to slow down to trolling speed to save myself from being tossed out of the boat. The people in the canoe must have been terrified. The swells were three feet peak to trough. What are licences for if the people who are supposed to have them haven't learned anything about boating?

Late payment penalty wrong

Dear editor,

I would like to bring to your attention what I believe is an unfair policy of the Township of Minden Hills. I recently discovered I had entered the wrong account number when paying my property taxes online. I learned this when I received a notice for $16 interest charged for late payment. Clearly, the payment wasn't late, it just went to the wrong account.

After looking into this, I was told that not only would I have to pay the interest on the payment that was not late, but that I would have to also pay a $25 fee to correct my original mistake. I can almost understand the $25 charge, although in this day and age it hardly costs that to correct an entry in a computerized environment, and I think this fee is unfair. But I cannot understand how the town can also charge interest on a payment they acknowledge was made on time. This is more than just unfair, it is simply wrong.

Just get on and do your thing

What's the weather like while you're reading this article? Raining, is it? Again! Just where is that long hot spell that we all expect in summer? You know, the one that burns the grass to a brown fuzz, turning it from lush lawn into a joy to behold for all of us who hate mowing. But no, it is or it has been raining again, just like it always does back in Blighty and the grass is growing so fast that the rabbits are having to use scythes to get to my veggie garden. But then again, I should be used to it, right, because it's just like back home, where it rains almost constantly, and the skies are always grey, and the grass is never brown, and no one is happy apart from the ducks. Or that's what you guys seem to think, eh? I know it is because of how many times I have heard (or rather been subjected to) that smirked lament about English weather: "Raining again, eh, must not bother you though, coming from England..." I usually just grin and agree politely, whilst imagining what my tormentor would look like doused in maple syrup and thrown to a rabid pack of sweet-toothed raccoons. Come on folks! You can do better than that. If I had emigrated from the rain forests of Ecuador, the monsoon regions of India or Vancouver Island, maybe but England, really? I'll bet you five bucks that the weather where I'm from is nicer than it is here at the moment. In fact, I'm almost certain it is because the online weather report for the week ahead in Burton-on-Trent, the town of my birth, features a row of seven bright yellow suns, and that's about five more beaming yellow icons than the forecasters are calling for in Haliburton over the next few days. Haha! I could gloat but I won't because I'm here with you soggy lot while my family is basking in the summery glory that blankets Blighty at the moment. Meanwhile, we dodge lightning strikes and take cover as the hail rains down from the July skies, all the while counting down the days until the first snowfall. And that's the problem. We, all of us, both Canucks and Pommies, are way too preoccupied with the weather. How about we forget about it and carry on regardless. Have you ever swam in a lake in a summer rain storm? It's magical. How about sat on the porch and watched a thunderstorm?

Breathtaking. Ran naked through a hail shower? That going a bit far, maybe? But you get my drift. Who cares what the weather brings, just get on and do your thing because unlike England, the Canadian seasons are quite marked and the weather range rather radical. So stop pontificating about the forecast and get on and swim in that lake because it'll be fall soon. And don't leave the naked running too late because those lower temperatures do nothing for a fellow's pride if he's spotted while out for a nude jog in December! Unless you live in England, then it's still warm, and raining.

Partnerships make Pinegrove Place possible

By Mark Arike

Marc Shroetter can breathe a sigh of relief now that he has found a place to call home.

Before moving into Pinegrove Place, Minden's latest affordable housing project, he was couch surfing for four years. Now he has a view and is surrounded by nature.

"I was one of many of us here who have been stressed out, looking for places to live that are healthy," said Shroetter during the official opening of the apartment building on July 7.

"This is something a lot of us are needing, especially as we get older we find our incomes are progressively getting lower and lower but prices are going up."

Located at 57 Parkside St., Pinegrove

Place is a one-storey building with 12 one-bedroom units for seniors and those with physical disabilities. Each unit is about 600 sq. ft. and the entire building is 9,500 sq. ft.

The $1.7-million project was made possible with federal and provincial funding, a $100,000 contribution from the County of Haliburton, another $100,000 from the Kawartha Lakes-Haliburton Housing Corporation and seed funding from Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation. The Township of Minden Hills donated the land and offered a lower property tax rate.

Construction began at the end of July 2016 and was finished in April. Tenants moved in immediately after.

Two units are market value at $1,000 per month while the remaining 10 are geared toward income. Two units are modified to accommodate tenants with disabilities. All are occupied.

Pinegrove is the result of partnerships, said Eleanor Harrison, chair of the housing corporation's board of directors.

Brent Devolin, warden of Haliburton County and reeve of Minden Hills, called it a "very happy, joyous day."

"After at least 20 years of not seeing much of this development in the community I live in, it's good to see us back in the housing business," said Devolin.

Both MP Jamie Schmale and MPP Laurie Scott were in attendance to congratulate those involved and touch on the importance of affordable housing.

"The need for housing—maybe you don't see it as much in rural Ontario—is very much there," said Scott. "We all need to work together as we are today."

A second phase is planned next door to the building. It will be a three-storey building comprised of 18-22 one to three bedroom units. However, it's unknown when that will begin because funding isn't available at this time, said Hope Lee, housing corporation CEO.

A few years ago, the housing corporation led the charge on Haliburton's Whispering Pines project. Other projects are in Lindsay, Fenelon Falls, Omemee and Bobcaygeon.

There is currently a five-year wait-list for housing. To apply, visit city.kawarthalakes.on.ca/residents/housinghelp.

Enviro watchdog: time for action is now

By Alex Coop

Ontario's environmental commissioner links her passion for spreading the word about climate change to her grandchildren.

"Think about some young person you care about," Dianne Saxe told a packed community centre in Minden July 6. "Climate change matters to us, but it matters a lot more to them."

Saxe, who's been Ontario's environmental commissioner since 2015, capped a busy day of meetings, lunch with local politicians and dignitaries, and a reception, with a public presentation hosted by Environment Haliburton!

She described her audience as a very educated group of people who knew a lot about the night's main topic.

But some of the facts she presented managed to drop several jaws.

While Ontario managed to meet its greenhouse gas emission (GHG) reduction targets in 2014 by closing all of its coal-fired power generating stations, Ontario consumed more transportation fuel (gasoline and diesel) than any other form of energy in every year since 2007, except 2014.

According to the commissioner's 2016 annual report on climate change in Ontario, dramatic increases in emissions came from heavy-duty freight vehicles, which has seen a 108 per cent increase since 1990.

Ontario is also warming faster than the world average, and the number of extreme weather events in Canada and the United States has tripled in the past few years alone.

Saxe compared the ongoing carbon dioxide emissions into our atmosphere to drunk driving.

"We're the drunk drivers, and our kids are along for the ride," she said, adding recent global carbon dioxide readings have shown the first-ever CO2 reading in excess of 410 parts per million.

"This hasn't happened before while there were humans on Earth," she said.

The audience also appreciated Saxe's subtle jab at American President Donald Trump, who has made a big push towards revitalizing that country's coal industry.

According to the US Department of Energy's most recent employment report, in 2016, solar energy employed more people than the traditional coal, gas, and oil industries combined.

"There are more people working at the carwash than in the coal industry," she said. "So when he's saying he's bringing coal jobs back ... whatever."

When asked about affordable ways to retrofit a home for energy efficiency, Saxe encouraged everyone to visit projectneutral.org, where homeowners can specifically track their carbon footprint and work towards reducing it.

Saxe also stressed the power of politics.

"Speak up. Ask your local politicians what they are doing to tackle climate change," she said.

A recent addition to the township's Renewable Energy Policy will require Minden Hills senior staff to include environmental implications and a "renewable energy readiness" assessment in the items they present to council, on top of the existing financial implications.

At the end of the night, Saxe was presented with note cards produced by a local artist and a wooden pen created by staff at Haliburton Forest and Wild Life Reserve's woodshop.

Buttermilk Falls bridge closed for safety

By Mark Arike

An old pedestrian bridge by Buttermilk Falls was recently closed after being deemed “unsafe for use,” according to Parks Canada. An engineering report also concluded it’s beyond repair and will need to be removed.

Darryl Whitehead, external relations manager, announced the news in a press release June 28, two days before the area was fenced off and signage posted.

The bridge, which shares the substructure of the dam, likely dates back to the 1930s, he said.

“It’s old and it’s close enough to the dam that it’s just simply the responsible thing to do to have it inspected,” Whitehead told The Highlander.

It’s located next to the Parks Canada-owned Halls Lake dam. But until this week, its ownership was a mystery.

“While research is ongoing, it appears as though the bridge belongs to the MTO and has never been transferred,” said Whitehead on Monday.

Parks Canada manages the TSW, which is comprised of 386 km of interconnected rivers, lakes, locks and canals. It conducts a detailed visual inspection of all its bridges every five years as well as annual inspections, which include site visits, dam adjustments and taking note of significant changes.

This pedestrian bridge is a remnant of the old highway system that used to run through the area, explained Whitehead. Similar bridges exist at Canning Lake dam and 12 Mile Lake dam.

The dam itself is being used as a temporary crossing. Steps and handrails have been installed to make it as user-friendly as possible. It will be “subject to the operational requirements of the dam and will not be available when the dam is at its winter setting,” said Whitehead.

Parks Canada informed the Township of Algonquin Highlands, the Halls and Hawk Lakes Property Owners Association, and businesses in the area about the closure.

Dale and John Rider, owners of Buttermilk Falls Resort, are concerned about an increase in visitors blocking guests and the fire department with their vehicles.

“It’s going to be nothing short of a nightmare for us,” said Dale.

Directly off Highway 35, a road passes in front of their home and office that leads to the resort. People already park on this road and she anticipates it will only get worse now that the bridge is off limits and they want a good view of the falls.

The road is the only access to the resort and the fire department uses it to draw water from Halls Lake.

Visitors are supposed to park in a public lot that is located next to the dam, on the opposite side of the falls. This is where the temporary crossing is.

Township Reeve Carol Moffatt agrees with the decision because public safety is paramount. She hasn’t received much feedback from the public at this time.

“I don’t know what’s going to happen long-term,” said Moffatt, adding she has asked Parks Canada to keep her abreast of any developments.

Public meeting for flood

The township is holding a public meeting on the 2017 flood on July 18.

"This will be an opportunity for individuals to ask questions and provide input ... regarding past and future water levels in Minden Hills," the township said in its information page in The Highlander.

It will be held at the Minden Community Centre, 55 Parkside St., from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.

"There's people that want to tell their stories," Reeve Brent Devolin told the June 29 council meeting. He added that the municipality and representatives of the Trent-Severn Waterway and the Ministry of Natural Resources and Forestry should be there.

He thinks there has to be an information piece at the beginning, too, since "there are already a number of things in process."

Coun. Pam Sayne said when it comes to mitigation, there must be a short-term and long-term plan. Devolin agreed all three levels of government must come to an agreement about the way forward.

Meanwhile, council is also working on a volunteer appreciation barbecue following the spring flooding.

Performance review for firefighters

After a firestorm at the last council meeting – about a proposed performance review for firefighters – CAO Lorrie Blanchard put out that fire June 29.

She said the township was not talking about a performance evaluation but more of a "wellness check" for volunteer firefighters.

"You would have that conversation, the wellness check, 'is there anything you do, or don't, like about your job?' it is not to focus on the performance," Blanchard said. She said it ties in with the recently adopted post-traumatic stress disorder policy.

Fire chief Doug Schell said when his office was in the fire hall, before the 2013 flood forced him to move into the municipal building, he would hold informal chats with volunteers and hopes that will resume in the new fire hall slated for Highway 35.

A relieved Reeve Brent Devolin said, "We've had a meeting of the minds. This has made my day to be honest."

But Coun. Pam Sayne said the wording should be changed from 'performance appraisal' to 'check in for health and wellness.'

New water treatment system

An ultraviolet treatment system will be installed at the Minden Hills Wastewater Treatment Facility. Council will take $37,500 from the wastewater reserve to complete the project after Ivan Ingram, manager of environmental and property operation, was able to secure federal and provincial grants amounting to $75,000. Ingram said the new system is preferable to using chemicals and is more than 99.9 per cent effective.

Minden Hills briefs

Review of zoning bylaw

There will be one more chance for the public to comment on a comprehensive review of the township zoning bylaw.

The review includes new rules and regulations for two-storey accessory structures, hunt camps, and parking space provisions.

Only one person spoke at a public meeting June 29 at council, saying the proposed amendments do not address drainage issues.

The final public meeting is scheduled for July 27 at 9 a.m. at council chambers.

Reeve's report

Reeve Brent Devolin said the Eastern Ontario Wardens Caucus (EOWC) discussed a local share solution to the province's municipal infrastructure gap. He said they talked about a one per cent share of the HST directed to municipalities that would go halfway to addressing the $4.9 billion gap. The EOWC also discussed an increase in the gas tax to four cents a litre, from two, with the additional revenue also going to municipalities. Devolin said the Eastern Ontario Regional Network (EORN) made a presentation and is developing a for-profit arm to contract its expertise on Internet and cell gap analysis.

Cyber liability insurance

Municipalities are at risk from cyber-attacks and should be insured, Meghan Callaghan, vice-president of Jardine Lloyd Thompson Canada Inc., told council June 29.

One example, she said, is hackers posing as senior members of an operation and authorizing staff to transfer money. She said there are cases of hacking into data banks to steal personal and tax roll information. There is an added threat due to the amount of infrastructure municipalities provide, Callaghan noted. She gave the example of hacking into a water or wastewater treatment plant and changing the chemical compositions, or hacking into a city's traffic lights. In a recent case, someone infiltrated the University of Calgary's computer system and stopped 9,000 email accounts from working. The university then got a ransom note to pay $20,000 to have them enabled. Callaghan said that in addition to financial insurance, they had experts at their disposal. Coun. Jeanne Anthon said it should be a County of Haliburton issue since it maintains lower-tier systems. Council received the report for information only. ## Dorset Health Hub seeks patient feedback

By Mark Arike

The Dorset Community Health Hub is always looking for feedback when it comes to better serving its patients. They recently distributed an email looking for testimonials, which could be featured in the hub's communication plan.

"The way we operate is we're a community and home care-focused health hub," said Collin Reaney, a researcher and fundraiser for the hub.

"It's to bring health care to the community and also to undertake more home visits as necessary, depending on the client base."

As a community-based facility, it's essential to know what's needed, said Reaney.

Public meetings are held every three months and statistics are reviewed just as frequently.

This is the hub's second year in operation.

Located in a new, two-storey building in Dorset, it offers a variety of services and helps many patients with chronic and complex conditions.

It was made possible with funding from the provincial government, and partnerships between the Dorset Community Partnership Fund, the Township of Lake of Bays, the Township of Algonquin Highlands and the Algonquin Family Health Team.

Thirty-eight per cent of its patients are from Haliburton County while the rest live in Muskoka, said Reaney.

Hub patients interested in providing feedback should call 705-766-0866 or email dorsetontario@gmail.com. More information is available at www.dorsetcanada.com/dorset-health-hub/hours-location.

More manpower to speed up water repairs

By Mark Arike

Fowler Construction began repairing Cardiff's outdated water system a month ago.

And each day, workers have made new discoveries underground.

According to environmental supervisor Stewart Hurd, this includes various depths of services, various connections and adapters on service lines, previous repairs, different groundwater levels and locations of service connections to the water main.

The $1.2 million project is expected to take three-and-a-half months to complete. An average of two water service replacements have been completed per day, but that's being upped to three with an additional crew member and extra equipment, said Hurd.

"All parties involved are focused on a safe and timely completion of this project with minimal disruption to the residents and visitors of the town of Cardiff."

The repairs are being paid for by government funding, reserves and the system's 261 users.

Highlands East examines higher planning fees

By Mark Arike

Highlands East council is considering increasing some of the municipality's planning fees.

On July 5, CAO Shannon Hunter recommended council pass a planning fees bylaw at its Aug. 2 council meeting.

A couple of changes include increasing the deposit for a site plan agreement from $300 to $1,000 along with a $350 non-refundable fee, and raising the deposit for a plan of subdivision from $2,000 to $2,500 with a $1,000 non-refundable fee. The current non-refundable fee is $350.

"Upcoming changes in staffing required a review of fees currently charged for the processing of planning applications," she said in a report. "There has also been a notable increase in consultation (preliminary and pre-consultation) with Municipal Planning Services on proposed and pending applications and no process in which to cover these charges."

A $450 non-refundable pre-consultation fee is included in the draft bylaw.

When coming up with the new fees, Hunter said information was obtained from the other lower-tier municipalities. Councillor Joan Barton asked how Highlands East compares and Hunter said "we're average."

Coun. Cecil Ryall expressed concern over some of the increases and wanted to closely review them at the next meeting.

"I'm not comfortable with the way it sits," said Ryall.

Hunter explained that in order to amend the fees, the public must be made aware of council's intent to pass the bylaw.

"We're intending to pass, but until council actually passes a bylaw that's all it is," she said.

The bylaw will include fees for solar applications.

Chamber wants more time for jobs legislation

By Lisa Gervais

The Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce has thrown its support behind the Keep Ontario Working group, which has written Premier Kathleen Wynne to slow down the implementation of Bill 148.

The coalition of Ontario's leading industry and sector associations is worried about The Fair Workplaces, Better Jobs Act, which if passed into legislation, will bring about major changes in less than six months. The most talked about alteration is a 32 per cent increase in the minimum wage in less than 18 months. The group has commissioned an independent economic analysis to better understand the impact.

Richard Wannan, president of the local chamber, said in an interview this week, "We truly do agree that the implementation needs to be slowed down."

But he emphasized slowed down, not stopped.

"We 100 per cent support the increase because we believe everybody deserves a sustainable lifestyle."

What the chamber doesn't like is seeing it done 'on the backs of small business and actually on their own (employees') backs too'."

He said the flip side of the minimum wage increase is what it will do to employees as well as consumers since businesses will have to absorb the increased cost somehow.

Wannan used words such as "rocket" and "surprise, surprise" in discussing the bill. He said consequently no one has had time to sit down and figure out a timeline that is achievable, tangible and effective.

He said businesses can plan for two to five per cent growth increases "but 32 per cent over 18 months, that's not something you plan."

He said some local businesses may opt to close for the winter, and some may close entirely. That will have an impact on employment and costs such as Employment Insurance, he said.

In a worse-case scenario in which the bill is legislated without change, Wannan said the chamber would support its members to implement it. He said there would be sessions on how to manage.

"We will be there with the support of the OCC and local community organizations to put together sessions to help them deal with this."

But he hopes it does not get to that point.

"Being optimistic, they're (the Liberals) going to sit back and look at this and say 'some of this is drastic, we need to change it a bit. We can only hope for good, long-term employment and keeping businesses stable so let's work with our business and community partners to make this a better piece of legislation'."

On Monday, MPPs kicked off a two-week consultation on the bill.

Local MPP Laurie Scott is currently surveying county businesses via the chamber. She is also encouraging people to make written submissions to the Standing Committee on Finance and Economic Affairs, which is now travelling to 10 communities to hear from residents and business owners. The closest to Haliburton County is July 21 in Toronto.

"Through a broad, inclusive consultation process, Ontario will ensure proposed changes give all workers the opportunity to succeed and get ahead," the Ontario Government said in a July 10 press release.

Have Your Say:

Those who don't want to speak in Toronto but want to comment on the Bill can send a written submission to the Clerk of the Committee, Room 1405, Whitney Block, Queen's Park, Toronto, ON M7A 1A2 by 5:30 p.m., July 21.

Haliburton Pet Valu donates to help local pets

By Mark Arike

A month-long initiative has equalled a $1,064 donation to the Haliburton Pet Owners' Assistance Fund (HPOAF). Pet Valu in Haliburton collected the money from staff and customers during Pet Appreciation Month in April.

"We appreciate the energy and enthusiasm of our staff in making this Pet Appreciation Month fundraising effort such a success and the generosity of pet parents in Haliburton who are willing to help other pet parents in need," said franchise co-owner Joanne Orleck in a press release.

HPOAF is a charity that launched in October 2015. Its mission is to help low-income residents of Haliburton County with the high costs of "non-routine veterinary care."

In the last 18 months, it has helped 11 dogs and five cats with the services of veterinarians in Haliburton, Minden and Cobocok.

During the month of April, Pet Valu stores across North America raised more than $2 million for pet charities and made it possible for 2,000 homeless pets to find permanent homes.

Community.

After more than six decades in Haliburton County, we have made many friends.

We have witnessed some great personal and business successes. But, because of what we do, we have also shared in some traumatic events. Helping people recover from their loss is good for our hearts and community. That's why it is similarly important to contribute to local causes including the arts, health care and local sports. We care about the people who live here.

Kennisis Lake artists persevere through storm

A fierce storm knocked out power for some Kennisis Lake cottagers, but it wasn't enough to stop them from exhibiting in last weekend's Art on the Dock.

"It [the tour] was great," said Tayce Wakefield, president of the Kennisis Lake Cottage Owners' Association. "It was a little slow starting on Saturday morning."

Wakefield said one participant's dock disappeared in the storm, which was the night before the event.

A total of 41 artists and artisans were featured at 20 locations around Kennisis Lake and Little Kennisis Lake during the third annual tour.

The event raised $4,200 for the Arts Council's Artists in the School program through sales of limited edition prints and T-shirts of "Bringing Home a Moosterpiece," a piece of artwork by participant Wilf McOstrich, and donations. In three years, $8,400 has been raised for the program. (Mark Arike).

Garlic greens provide year-round flavour

By Mark Arike

Did you know that garlic cloves aren't the only edible part of the pungent plant?

In addition to scapes, another tasty option is garlic greens. These grow from cloves or bulbis that are planted in soil. They are ready early on, about three weeks into the development of the plant.

Debbie Barnhart, a director with the Haliburton County Garlic Growers Association, wants to engage more people when it comes to learning about growing garlic for themselves.

The Windowsill Garlic project is intended to do just that—and raise some money for the association's ongoing education programs. It launched in January and half the windowsill plants have sold since then.

"It's something that can be done in a small space," said Barnhart, who also heads up educational initiatives for the association. "With greens, you can still have all the flavour and the nutrients."

She included information about windowsill garlic in the first edition of the association's newsletter and mentioned the idea to some women in Minden. Soon she had requests for plants coming her way.

"It's really caught on," she said.

About 8 to 10 cuttings can be obtained from one plant, said Barnhart. They can be used in omelettes and potato dishes, for example.

They make great gifts and Barnhart plans to market it as year-round garlic.

"Once it's worn out, you don't just throw away what's in the pot. You pull the bulb out, chop it up, eat that and hopefully you've started another pot," she said.

The windowsill plants can be bought for $3.50 from the association. They are also being sold at Abbey Gardens. Barnhart can provide a demonstrate to those who want a plant.

She is currently working on developing some children's garlic programming with Abbey Gardens.

"We want to start immersing people in the fact it's locally grown, it's fun and doesn't have to be complicated."

To buy a windowsill plant, call Barnhart at 705-489-3987 or email barnhartdebbie@gmail.com.

Meet the cottagers

Who says you can never go home again? Cousins Michelle Gassyt of Indianapolis, Indiana, and Janice Lymer of Scarborough, returned to Haliburton July 8 after 17 years away. "We essentially grew up here," says Gassyt. "We came up to Kashagawigamog every single summer for a week as long as I can remember." Returning to Haliburton sparked a series of memories and flashbacks of their childhood together in the region, and although "it feels like a lifetime has gone by," says Lymer, it's as though nothing has changed. "This area has a way of helping us pick back right up where we left off," says Gassyt, "we're still laughing at the same things together, it's truly amazing to be back to the place that feels like 'home.'" (Emily Stonehouse).

The pride of Black Lake

A little lake with a big heart celebrated Canada Day with a huge parade. More than a dozen watercrafts toured Black Lake decked out in full Canadian pride. Parade watchers cheered from their docks and the whole lake burst with spirit. The event was followed by prizes that were purchased from the flood zone of Minden. Every participant received a Canadian flag. The evening ended with a bang as spectacular fireworks were observed from boats. ## Tennis tournament feeling the love

By Lisa Gervais

Interested in watching a threesome? Then head to Haliburton's tennis courts July 18 where you can watch teams of three compete against each other in the Maple Leaf/Haliburton Tennis Tournament.

For the second year in a row, Jeff Papiez and Greg Freeman are hosting the local tournament.

It's all set to go next Tuesday from 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Freeman said it's a tournament involving members of their tennis club at Maple Leaf Golf and Country Club in Port Charlotte, Fla. as well as members of their Monday, Wednesday, Friday tennis group in Haliburton.

Many of the Maple Leaf visitors are Canadian snowbirds who travel south for the winter.

Last year was the first ever tournament and there were eight teams, with about 25 people travelling to Haliburton to take part.

"It was so well received that this year it has doubled in size and we have 16 teams with about 50 people coming to Haliburton for the tournament," Freeman said. "There are three couples who are travelling up from Florida in motorhomes for the event, another couple coming from Detroit and another couple from Quebec."

Freeman said this year they think that there is more interest because of Canada's 150th birthday and they've heard that people want to see Haliburton's beautiful cottage country.

In order to encourage as much participation as possible, they play triples tennis, which means that each team has three players, so they're able to have 12 players at a time using the two courts.

"This is a new game to most of our Haliburton friends and we have had fun teaching them the fundamentals of this version of tennis," Freeman said.

He added that Andrea Meuller, the parks and recreation director of Dysart et al, has been a terrific supporter in helping them to organize the event and preparing the venue.

Freeman said visitors will be either staying in motels or billeted for the Monday and Tuesday nights. They will have time to visit the town and get a feel for the county and also spend some time on the water. Some will be extending their visit for the rest of the week and through the weekend, he said.

Highland Games keep Scottish culture alive

It was a beautiful day to celebrate Highlands heritage with the third annual Highland Games in Kinmount. Starting in 1987 in Glebe Park, the Highland Games spent over 20 years in Haliburton, then took a few years off before settling in the Kinmount Fairgrounds three years ago. The event is planned throughout the year by six dedicated volunteers, as well as a wealth of local support. The day is designed to highlight the ties between our own local heritage and Scottish culture, as well as Scottish music, dance, and sport. Five pipe bands travelled from across the province to play in the games, including Orillia, Peterborough, Collingwood, North Hastings, and our own Haliburton Highlanders, who partnered up to play with Bracebridge throughout the ceremony. The bands joined together for the closing ceremonies in a massed band, boasting more than 60 pipers and 10 drummers to conclude the day.

Finn paints wolves in positive light

On July 9, artist Carole Finn hosted an opening ceremony for her newest exhibition, titled "For the Love of Wolves." The show displays a variety of mediums, including prints, lithographs and woodcuts, designed to highlight the wild yet misunderstood history of wolves. The opening reception was kicked off by Dr. Peter Schleifenbaum of the Haliburton Forest, who described different mannerisms, characteristics, and patterns of wolves that make them so distinct and crucial to our ecosystem. "For the last 2,000 years, wolves were seen as the epitome of evil," says Schleifenbaum. "It has only changed in recent history, now that we have learned of the benefits and the science of the wolves." Schleifenbaum went on to thank Finn for her exhibition, saying that it was time we brought wolves to the forefront again, this time in a positive light. The exhibition runs until Aug. 22 at the Finn Artists' Centre in Minden. Left: Dr. Peter Schleifenbaum of the Haliburton Forest explains the importance of wolves to our ecosystem. Right: Guests at the opening ceremony of "For the Love of Wolves." (Photos by Emily Stonehouse).

CONFEDERATION LOG HOMES It can be difficult to choose a home for your family. Why not choose from a family owned and operated business?

President Rick Kinsman designed, cut, delivered and assembled the first house more than 36 year ago and has overseen every one of the thousands completed since then. Confederation has been recognized for unique designs, innovative technologies, a quality product, business excellence and most recently, sustainability. Their homes not only incorporate a green way of building but are also very energy efficient. Logs have thermal mass capturing the heat and releasing it back out after the heat source is turned off making Confederation homes more energy efficient than a conventional stick built home. During the design phase of a home or cottage they produce 3D renderings of the project inside and out. Since each home they do is custom, each client's specific needs and wants are factored in to design it uniquely for them. Once the design is completed you will receive a 3D virtual tour to show every angle of every room. Drive down the driveway or boat up from the lake, open the front door, stand in the kitchen, sit in the great room, etc. Confederation homes are long lasting, come with a 50-year warranty and know their product fits best in the Highlands. They have countless homes spread throughout area and have already scheduled 2016 builds. Visit their website and Facebook page for updates or speak with Rick, Rich or Andy Kinsman today. ## Free book exchange finds home in West Guilford

The Haliburton Lions Club is putting new books in the hands of children with the launch of its own Little Free Library. This week, books purchased by the club will be located at the West Guilford Shopping Centre—inside a miniature wooden log home built by Peter Stelter. It's a free book exchange and the idea is to take a book and replace it with a new or used one. The club is now part of a worldwide network of more than 50,000 Little Free Libraries. Little Free Library is a non-profit organization that promotes reading. It was a Lions centennial project. (Mark Arike).

HSAD nifty at fifty

Haliburton School of Art and Design (HSAD) is celebrating 50 years of art and craft education in Haliburton, and what better way to kick off their 50th year than with an exhibition highlighting the unique and eclectic talent of HSAD faculty, simply titled “50.” With all mediums displayed – from ceramics to printmaking – the show offers something for everyone to spark that creative energy. “What appeals to me,” says Sandra Dupret, dean of HSAD and curator of the exhibition, “is the diversity of the medium.” Dupret and organizer Shelley Schell ensured that viewers had the opportunity to view the range of talent offered by HSAD staff, promoting educational opportunities available through the school. The exhibition will run until Aug. 19 in the Great Hall at HSAD. Above: Organizers Erin Lynch, Shelley Schell, and Sandra Dupret celebrate the show opening. ## Dysart celebrates 150-year history

One week after Canada celebrated a big birthday, Dysart et al celebrated 150 years of community in the Highlands July 7-9. It was a weekend full of live music, water sports, friendly competition, and community support from the Lions Club, the Rotary Club, and many other local vendors and organizations. The event saw hundreds of locals and cottagers checking out the festivities around Head Lake Park, and was made possible by a dedicated group of volunteers and organizers. Top: Arden and the Tourists, who have performed around Toronto, Collingwood, Muskoka, and many other destinations refer to their favourite region as "sweet home Haliburton." ## Time to get back on the saddle

By Lisa Gervais

If you're afraid to cycle on county roads, or just haven't been in the saddle for a long time, an event this Sunday might motivate you to get back on two wheels.

Following on from Stanhope Heritage Days Saturday, the Stanhope Heritage Cycling Tour is back.

Offered by Friends of the Rail Trail (FoRT), it's a leisurely guided bicycle ramble for the curious cyclist of any age or ability.

It goes July 16 from 10 a.m. to noon with a "bring your own" picnic social after.

It's an easy 10 km loop beginning and ending at Buttermilk Falls picnic area on Highway 35 between Boshkung and Halls Lake.

"The tour includes lots of stops to explore pioneer history, private sculptures, heritage stone architecture and scenic natural settings," said Pamela Marsales, chair of FoRT, who will be the guide.

She has cottaged in the area all her life and says, "of the more than 90 outings I've led with FoRT, this is always my favourite."

She said the route is fairly flat and shady, following quiet backroads. It's perfect for novice or lapsed cyclists.

Participants in the 2012 ride. Submitted.

"It's a Sunday Ramble on two wheels with lots of time for friendly interaction along the way."

Marsales said FoRT discovered the little gem of a cycling loop years ago, and presents it annually the day after Stanhope Heritage Day.

"The unique outing fulfills FoRT's mandate to offer free public programming focusing on history, nature and appreciation of greenspace. As with FoRT's popular rail trail Sunday Rambles, the social lunch après is a welcome feature.

"Participants enjoy their picnic lunch beside the dramatic Buttermilk Falls rapids while continuing conversations with friends newly met," Marsales said.

Facts What to bring: your bicycle, helmet, water, snacks, picnic lunch, bug spray, sunscreen, camera, curiosity and enthusiasm.

Tour is open to the public free with optional memberships to FoRT available at $10 per adult. Please call or text Pamela at 705 457-4767 or email pamela.marsales@gmail.com to pre-register or for more info.

ENVIRO-TIP

There's only one Haliburton Highlands. Let's take care of it.

Solar Lights

Look for solar path and deck lighting with an 'off' switch so they can be turned off when not in use. Leaving them on all night can confuse wildlife and interrupt their natural behaviours. Excess light also washes out one of our most beautiful sights: the star-filled Highlands sky.

If you can't turn them off, put something over them when not in use.

Take a selfie with Sir John A. MacDonald

By Lisa Gervais

Not surprisingly, this year's Stanhope Heritage Day will celebrate Canada's 150th in style.

"This year, in honour of Canada's birthday, we will have free pieces of birthday cake," says coordinator Charlene McConnell.

The July 15th event marks the 15th annual Heritage Day celebration.

"The whole day is geared to being a fun and informative experience for the whole family. We have many demonstrations depicting our heritage arts, crafts and trades. Many are interactive and enable the public to try their hand at old techniques," McConnell said.

There will also be an improv skit about Confederation.

"We will have a Sir John A. MacDonald, a George Brown and/or Queen Victoria, and a local character, probably a trapper who will challenge the politicians about how Confederation will affect the community. It should be lots of fun for everyone. We will encourage the public to take part and to take selfies with the historical characters," she added.

Local authors will be in attendance with recently published books, including Sharon Lawrence and Barbara Gregory's Canadian Culinary Treasures 1867-2017, 150 heirloom recipes in honour of Canada's 150th.

McConnell added their bake sale and butter tart bake-off, hosted by the Friends of the Stanhope Museum, is always a big hit.

There is free face painting by Fluffy Feet Face Painters and free pony rides for the kids. Kids will be able to make a heritage craft to take home, write their name on a certificate of attendance with a quill pen and try their hand at drilling a hole for a maple syrup spigot. There will also be the opportunity to see and use a variety of antique tools, antique cameras, learn to make soap and butter and much more. A display of antique cars will also be there.

They will be having a raffle again this year to support the pony rides with three great prizes.

The day goes from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Stanhope Museum Grounds, 1123 North Shore Rd., just east of Highway 35 north of Carnarvon $3 admission; kids five and under are admitted for free. Lots of off-road parking. All demonstrations are outside so people are advised to bring a hat, sunscreen and water and walking shoes. The event goes rain or shine. For the full event guide, go to stanhopemuseum.on.ca.

Stanhope Heritage Day Schedule:

- Bake sale 9 a.m.
- The Tentshakers performing 10 a.m. – 2 p.m.
